

Comparative Adjective

A comparative adjective is an adjective used to compare two people or things. We use comparative adjectives to say that one person or thing demonstrates a high degree of a quality or is a better example of a quality than the other.

Exercise: Fill in the blanks with the correct comparative adjectives.

1. No man ever had a _____mate. (faithful)
2. The obligation of another contract, that of location, is of a _____ kind. (complicated)
3. It was a much _____place than we had anticipated. (large)
4. I mean the word in a _____sense. (broad)
5. He could not have received a _____blow. (heavy)
6. I have no access to an _____edition. (early)
7. It couldn't have come at a _____spot. (good)
8. Never had we found a _____ task. (severe)
9. They therefore displayed a much _____spirit. (humble)
10. Their conversation gradually took a _____form. (personal)
11. I had never seen a _____woman. (beautiful)
12. It was a far _____house than he had expected. (small)
13. Never did she spend a _____afternoon. (weary)
14. You would give them a _____ flight. (heavenly)
15. _____love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. (great)
16. Life was a matter of _____ importance. (immediate)
17. I had never seen him in a _____mood. (interesting)
18. A _____addition could not have been desired. (fortunate)
19. Dick had never beheld a _____ contrast. (striking)
20. A _____beginning could hardly have been made. (bad)