A UK-based travel company is giving adventurers the chance to explore the globe like never before with a 100-day luxury train journey. Inspired by Jules Verne's Around the World in 80 Days, the trip promises unforgettable experiences for its 12 lucky passengers. From UNESCO World Heritage Sites to Michelin-starred dining, this adventure blends comfort with cultural exploration.

Starting in London, this extraordinary trip covers 14 countries across Europe, Asia, and North America. Along the way, travelers can enjoy stunning landscapes, unique traditions, and visits to iconic locations. The journey includes two luxury cruises, with a 23-day trip between Japan and Canada that stops in Alaska.

Adventures by Train emphasizes its commitment to slow travel, encouraging passengers to savor every moment. Jim Louth, the founder, calls this trip a "bucket list" experience, perfect for those looking for rich and immersive travel. This approach aligns with the philosophy of truly connecting with the world through trains.

This global adventure comes with a luxurious price tag—approximately $148,000 per passenger. However, this cost covers not just meals and accommodations but also a life-changing experience. Traveling in high comfort and style, participants will witness cultures and sights that leave lasting impressions.

Adventures by Train also offers shorter trips for those with limited time or budgets. Options include exploring Asia or South America over 16 to 25 days. These trips provide memorable experiences while still showcasing the magic of train travel and global discovery.
