

The Trillionaire Era

ARTICLE READING

Economists predict that the world will see its very first trillionaire within the next ten years. While the global economy faces challenges, the wealth of the top richest individuals is growing at a record pace. This trend is driven by massive investments in technology, artificial intelligence, and global energy corporations. Experts are debating whether having individuals with this much financial power is good for global innovation or bad for economic equality.